61. HEALTH & SAFETY REPRESENTATIVES

The employees may request that the Employer commence negotiations to determine work groups. Once those work groups have been identified workers may elect a Health and Safety Representative (HSR) and Deputy Health & Safety Representative (DHSR) if any, for each work group in accordance with the provisions of the Work Health and Safety Act (NSW) 2011.

Once elected, the HSR will be paid an allowance of $1.50 per hour, on top of their ordinary hourly rate, for each hour worked. This payment will commence from the first full pay period commencing after the election. Where the HSR is absent, the DHSR will receive an allowance of $1.50 per hour for each hour worked for the period of their absence.

As soon as practical within the period of 3 months after the Employer being advised of the election of the HSR and the DHSR, the Employer will arrange and pay for the necessary training to enable the HSR and the DHSR to perform their role. While attending these courses the HSR and the DHSR will be paid their normal rate of pay, including all allowances. That is, they will not have their wages reduced because of their attendance at the training course.

After their initial training, Health and Safety Representatives will be afforded up to a maximum of an additional five days training per annum at accredited Safework training programs, other appropriate seminars and Union endorsed meetings, forums, and training. Health and Safety Representatives will be paid their normal rate including all allowances while attending these courses. The Employer will be provided 7 days' notice of such training/forums and the name of the HSR/s attending.

The Employer will allow a HSR and the DSHR (if any) to exercise their obligations under the Act during their ordinary working hours.

The Employer will ensure that a list of HSR and DSHR (if any) for each work group is prepared, kept up to date and distributed to all employees on a regular basis.

The HSR may request the Employer to establish a workplace health and safety committee. If the Employer is requested to do so they will establish a health and safety committee within one month of that request.

The HSR shall not be transferred from site without agreement from the majority of employees on that site at a duly convened paid meeting of no more than 30 Minutes and agreed to by the Union in writing.
